

The Atlanta Daily Constitution

FRIDAY MORNING, DEC. 22, 1876.

THE PRESIDENT'S SALARY.

Grant vetoed the bill to reduce the annual pay of the president from the princely sum of $50,000 to the old figure. The veto was sent in at the last session, but was not called up until this week. U. S. G. took the ground that the people believed the chief magistrate of the nation should receive $50,000 a year—a fact that he did not learn from petitions presented or in any other legitimate way. He ignored the fact that the president is indirectly paid as much more than he receives as salary, by various appropriations that make his expenses comparatively light. A considerable debate sprang up when the veto was taken up. Mr. Hamlin of course agreed with the president; he always does. There were eighteen others who agreed with him, and we print their names as a matter of curiosity:

THE OFFICIAL HOLDERS REBELLION.

The New York Times labors hard every day to stiffen the backbone of the conspirators and the point that it presents oftenest and most conspicuously, is based on statements of southern democratic intentions. A lengthy article, for example, that appeared last Monday morning, contained the following paragraph:

FACT AND COMMENT.

Mrs. JEFFERSON DAVIS and her daughter will remain abroad during the winter. The issue now lies between the saving of the nation and the common sense of the American people.

Penacola has escaped the yellow count themselves among his acquaintances and friends. Bogota, Oct. 16, 1876.

To-day, at 1 p. m., the president of the union received in public audience, and with the solemnities befitting the occasion, the Hon. Wm. L. Scruggs, minister resident of the United States of America, who, in presenting his letter of recall, spoke as follows:

"Mr. President:—It becomes my duty to deliver my letter of recall, and take leave of your excellency, and as minister resident of the United States of the government of Colombia, in doing so, I improve the occasion in obedience to instructions from my government, to express in behalf of its chief magistrate, his continued friendship, and that of the people of the United States, for yourself and for the government and people of the Colombia union."

"I feel justified in adding that the policy of withholding further appropriations for this mission originated in no want of sympathy and friendship for your government; but from an opinion prevailing in the United States congress, that the present condition of the country and the industries of the country, required a reduction of expenditures in every branch of the public service."

"The president entertains the hope, therefore, that the necessity which has been thought to require the present policy of withholding further appropriations for this mission, will be but temporary and of short duration."

"I cannot omit the opportunity, Mr. President, to thank you for your many tokens of personal confidence and friendship. My personal and official relations, as well with your immediate predecessor, have been, to me at least, most agreeable and satisfactory."

"My residence in your capital has been, upon the whole, pleasant and agreeable; and whilst I very naturally desire to return to my home and people, I do not leave the bright and genial climate of Colombia without feelings of genuine regret."

"I have lived long enough in your midst to form a high estimate of your capital, and shall carry with me none but the kindest remembrances of your beautiful country and its generous and hospitable people."

"The president responded as follows: 'The high official and personal relations which you have just made known to me by placing in my hands your letter of recall, can but be a source of satisfaction to me, and to the people of Colombia.'

"The assurance of cordial

ZACH CHANDLER TO R. B. HAYES.

What then art thou to do? Hear thy nature,
It is too full of the milk of human kindness
To catch the nearest way. Thou wouldst be great;
Art without ambition, but without
The greatness that ambition would bestow;
Then dost thou wrong the world and wrong'st thyself,
By being more common than the world itself;
Hast thou not heard the world's great men
How they have striven? And who among them
Has followed the path of the humble? No, no,
The world is full of the milk of human kindness,
And thou art one of the number.

REVENUE IN GEORGIA.

Incendiaries should be frowned down in every well-regulated community. Therefore let every infant be stripped of its tin-horn and its soothing syrup. The officers of the law should be unusually vigilant.

The Griffin News says that "according to the Constitution, wheat and flour is advancing in the west." Well, if they are, it is not according to the Atlanta Constitution.

It is said the city council of Savannah are compelled to pay the expenses of a nurse at the barracks, whose duty it is to take care of the infants arrested by the police for tampering with the tin-horn. Let justice be done.

Col. E. P. Speer, of the Griffin News, was in the city yesterday. He is the father of a new daughter, and he came up to get some cuttings for a paragon orchard that he is planting.

Suppose that on Christmas day a small boy, either in Atlanta or Savannah, should rush out on an alleyway, foot an innocent tin-horn right under the nose of a vigilant policeman, and then wildly scamper off to his hidden fastnesses. This is an accident quite liable to happen, and we think that whenever it occurs the vile deed should be promptly shot on the spot—if the spot can be found. Let us have no partiality in this important matter.

Christmas will occur on the 25th, in Columbus, unless there is a freshet, or something of that sort.

Col. Clardy, of the Macon Telegraph, has bought him a pair of striped socks with white to tempt Santa Claus.

Owing to the pressure of circumstances, Richardson, of the Savannah News, carries his tin-horn concealed in his shoes. Armed in this manner, and flourishing a gold-headed walking cane, he marches through the principal streets unmolested.

The Macon Telegraph intimates that that city is very proud of the community. This is perhaps one of the reasons why tin-horns will be allowed to appear in the streets unmolested.

Columbus and Macon are the only towns in the state in which a small boy can enjoy life unmolested by the minions of the law. Armed with a tin horn they can sit and toot, and toot, and compel even Kris Kringle himself to close his aching ears.

The tooth-paste peddler now in the city is one of the most eloquent auctioneers in America. He sings like a troubadour and talks with the impassioned vehemence of a Columbian orator. We trust he will take out a license for blowing a tin-horn on Christmas.

The barn and stable of Mr. Thomas Hardy, of Bibb county, were burned by an incendiary on Monday night, together with four mules and six or seven hundred bushels of corn.

Mr. Robert C. Johnson, of Baltimore, was married recently to Miss Fraser, of Columbus.

Some of the planters of Sumter county are raising oranges, and the American Republican has been presented with a specimen of the fruit grown on the place of Mrs. Jesse Stanford.

Mr. E. J. Young, of Thomas county, was killed by a falling tree recently.

Mr. Rabun Thompson, of Warren county, lost his dwelling house by fire recently.

The Millidgeville Recorder says that Rev. H. T. Parks, pastor of the Methodist church for the ensuing year has the reputation of being one of the best preachers in the north Georgia conference.
